

A FEW WORDS ON THE FORMAT OF OUR LIST

We organize our wines not by where they come from or what they're made of, but by the characteristics they share. What does it taste like? Is it fruity, or funky? How does it feel in your mouth? We've singled out Half Bottles, because we think they are so much fun to play around with. German Rieslings and Red Burgundies get special attention, as they are so good with food, and we've taken the liberty of highlighting wines that pair well with our Dry-Aged Steak. Plus, we've recently added a selection of bottles with age, courtesy of a local friend. Bon appetit!

A FEW FAVORITES for March 2014

There are bottles we return to again and again, because they work well with our food; because they comfort us when we need it; because they're simply delicious. Here are a few favorites:

- Sauvignon Blanc, Klassic, Hannes Sabathi, Sudsteiermark, Austria 2010 43
lean and mean, with racing acidity, great tart fruit and a strong mineral zing
- Sylvaner, Kofererhof, Alto Adige Valle Isarco, Italy 2012 55
the floral nose is France; the apricot flavor is Germany; the mineral bite is Italy
- Mâcon-Uchizy, 'Les Maranches,' Les Heritiers du Comte Lafon, Burgundy, France 2011 65
rich but not heavy, this Chardonnay has mustard spice, minerals and a touch of oak
- Xinomavro, Karydas, Naoussa, Greece 2008 55
unbelievably herbaceous but also dark, rich; a prime example of power and finesse
- Merlot Blend, Owen Roe, Yakima Valley, Washington 2009 74
this Bordeaux-style red has New World fruit and Old World elegance and complexity
- Gigondas, Cuvee Speciale, Tardieu-Laurent, Rhône, France 2010 96
white, green, red and black pepper, plus beef jerky and barbecue; grandly unsubtle

HALF BOTTLE ALERT!

- Champagne Rose Premier Cru, Rose de Saignee, Geoffroy, Vallee de la Marne, France N.V. 80
raspberries and minerals ride the concentrated bubbles on this beautiful rose
- Chardonnay, Saintsbury, Carneros, California 2010 33
spiced pear and apple, fresh pastry, a touch of cream – a liquid tartlette
- Chassagne-Montrachet 1er Cru, 'Morget,' Jean Noel Gagnard, Burgundy, France 2011 43
yes, Chassagne is better known for white wine; this red will make you wonder why

GERMAN RIESLING

In a bit of Darwinian poetry, it is thought that many of the best wines in the world are produced in some of the most marginal climates, where the vines must struggle to survive. Germany fits right into that trope: it has historically been too cold for grapes to properly ripen; and the picturesque riverbanks where vineyards are planted are too steep for men to walk. The vines fight to take root on these rocky, dangerous slopes; but once secure they can produce some of the most dramatically exciting white wines.

German Riesling is not necessarily sweet, but it is always fruit-forward on the nose with bright, refreshing acidity on the finish. As the wines age, they take on a honeyed quality and the flavors become more concentrated; for example, the 2011 Willi Schaefer Kabinett both smells and tastes of apricot, while the 2002 Schlossgut Diel Kabinett smells and tastes of dried apricot—and a whole lot of other stuff.

These wines are great with food, great as an aperitif, great in place of dessert. Did we mention that they are great with food? The cold climate helps guarantee extraordinarily high acidity from a grape with naturally high acid; and all that acidity means they work well at the table with just about anything you throw their way. As The Wire tells us, ‘The Germans are a hard-headed people, but you can’t beat them for craft.’

RED BURGUNDY

Pinot Noir from the French region of Burgundy is not so much loved as worshipped. Cases from the best vineyards in the best vintages get auctioned off for tens of thousands of dollars; and wine critics write paeans full of phrases like 'Its bouquet is redolent of animal, spice notes, underbrush, and prune, evolving with age towards musk, leather, fur and mushroom.' It can be a little intimidating, to say the least.

But if we step back from the pomp and circumstance, we see that there is a reason these wines have become so prized. Few other places in the world can consistently produce red wines with such elegance and balance, or with such a range of styles and flavors. And all of this is produced exclusively from Pinot Noir. What's more, it can be uniquely versatile among red wines at the table. No matter if the particular bottle is pretty and floral (à la the 2011 Dureuil-Janthial Rully), light and fruity (the 2006 Francois Gaunoux Volnay), or earthy and chewy (2011 Domaine Newman Beaune) – the tannin and acidity will be so well balanced that it can pair with everything from sole to sirloin.

Just be forewarned – you might start writing poetry and emptying your savings.

THE WINES OF LARRY TURLEY

There is an Italian grape, thought to be a cousin to American Zinfandel, called ‘Primitivo.’ It’s the perfect description of Zinfandel. Now Larry Turley isn’t Italian, but his wines embrace the primitive side of this incredibly robust and juicy grape. Hell, even when he isn’t working with Zinfandel, his style leans towards the primal and massive. The Petite Sirahs are not petite – they are Falstaffian. That Dusi Vineyard is 16.1% alcohol and is sleek, powerful and dark as a sex panther—yet the alcohol is totally in balance with the fruit and acid. (And yes, that is an Anchorman reference.)

While one can dine at Stone Park, we ourselves like to eat. Thick pork chops, big steaks with garlicky green beans – it’s just how we roll. When we tuck in to big, boldly flavored meals, it makes us happy to have a big, boldly flavored wine at hand. Hence our love of Larry Turley and his magically anti-subtle wines.

STEAK WINES

Were you looking at the Dry-Aged New York Strip Steak? Of course you were. It is delicious, after all – rich and tangy and peppery and juicy. So now you need a wine to go with it – perhaps something in the rich, tangy, peppery, juicy vein? There are plenty of wines on the list that are good with steak (Champagne – no joke) – but these are the ones that are great.

Oh, and these wines are great with lots of things other than steak, too. Burgers, Pork Chops, or just on their own...

SELECTIONS FROM THE CELLAR OF A NEIGHBORHOOD FRIEND

We have a friend in Park Slope who has, for years, inspired and impressed us with the wines he pulls from his private cellar. He's always more than happy to share when he opens a bottle; and on more than one occasion he has turned us on to new things. Recently, he decided that he had more in his cellar than he could be sure to drink (and, of course, he doesn't want to stop collecting!), and so we've teamed up to share the wine with you.
