A FEW WORDS ON THE FORMAT OF OUR LIST

We organize our wines not by where they come from or what they're made of, but by the characteristics they share. What does it taste like? Is it fruity, or funky? How does it feel in your mouth? We've singled out Half Bottles, because we think they are so much fun to play around with. German Rieslings and Red Burgundies get special attention, as they are so good with food, and we've taken the liberty of highlighting wines from 2004 to celebrate our 10th Anniversary. Bon appetit!

A FEW FAVORITES for February 2018

There are bottles we return to again and again, because they work well with our food; because they comfort us when we need it; because they're simply delicious. Here are a few favorites:

Albarino, 'Kristy Vineyard,' La Marea, Monterey County, California 2016 49
lovely tangerine fruit that marks Albarino meets bracing salinity brought by the sea

Rully, Domaine Vincent Dureuil-Janthial, Burgundy, France 2014 70
they don't make very much of this fine Chardonnay; take advantage before it's gone!

Torrette, Diego Curtaz, Valle d'Aoste, Italy 2013 57
from the northernmost part of Italy, this is pale & light, with spice and dried cherry

Pinot Noir, Sang du Dragon, Francois Baur, Alsace, France 2012 80 white chocolate-dipped cherries combine with bright acid in this beautiful pale red

HALF BOTTLE ALERT!

Champagne Rose Premier Cru, Rose de Saignee, Geoffroy, Vallee de la Marne, France N.V. 80 deep, dark rose that's bubbly even by Champagne standards with searing minerality

Grüner Veltliner, 'Heiligenstein,' Hirsch, Kamptal, Austria 2013 35 lively, peppery and slightly effervescent, this classic Gruner pairs with everything

Aloxe-Corton, Vieille Vigne, Edmond Cornu & Fils, Burgundy, France 2012 54
1) it's Burgundy; 2) it's ready to drink; 3) it's from a great vintage; do you need a 4)?

2004 – IT WAS A VERY GOOD YEAR...

...and in that September, two friends from Park Slope, both named Josh, opened a small neighborhood restaurant across from a little concrete park that featured a creaky swing set and a replica of a Dutch farmhouse that served as a field hospital during the Battle of Brooklyn in 1776.

To celebrate 10 years of existence, we have assembled a collection of bottles from wineries that represent the best of 2004. Some of these labels will be familiar to anyone who has been here over the years (La Vielle Cure, Corison), while others are more recent discoveries (Selene, Musar, Cortese) – but all of them are extraordinary, versatile wines that complement our full-flavored food with character and balance. Don't take our word for it, though – like the president of a decade ago, you are The Decider.

GERMAN RIESLING

In a bit of Darwinian poetry, it is thought that many of the best wines in the world are produced in some of the most marginal climates, where the vines must struggle to survive. Germany fits right into that trope: it has historically been too cold for grapes to properly ripen; and the picturesque riverbanks where vineyards are planted are too steep to walk. The vines fight to take root on these rocky, dangerous slopes, but once secure they can produce some of the most dramatically exciting white wines.

German Riesling is not necessarily sweet, but it is always fruit-forward on the nose with bright, refreshing acidity on the finish. As the wines age, they take on a honeyed quality and the flavors become more concentrated.

These wines are great with food, great as an aperitif, great in place of dessert. The cold climate helps guarantee extraordinarily high acidity from a grape with naturally high acid; and all that acidity means they work well at the table with just about anything you throw their way.

RED BURGUNDY

Pinot Noir from the French region of Burgundy is not so much loved as worshipped. Cases from the best vineyards in the best vintages get auctioned off for tens of thousands of dollars; and wine critics write paeans full of phrases like 'Its bouquet is redolent of animal, spice notes, underbrush, and prune, evolving with age towards musk, leather, fur and mushroom.' It can be a little intimidating, to say the least.

But if we step back from the pomp and circumstance, we see that there is a reason these wines have become so prized. Few other places in the world can consistently produce red wines with such elegance and balance, or with such a range of styles and flavors. And all of this is produced exclusively from Pinot Noir. What's more, it can be uniquely versatile among red wines at the table. No matter if the particular bottle is pretty and floral (à la the 2011 Rollin Pernand-Vergelesses), light and fruity (the 2010 Magnien Morey-Saint-Denis), or earthy and chewy (2013 Dugat-Py Gevrey-Chambertin) – the tannin and acidity will be so well balanced that it can pair with everything from sole to sirloin.

Just be forewarned – you might start writing poetry and emptying your savings.

THE WINES OF LARRY TURLEY

There is an Italian grape, thought to be a cousin to American Zinfandel, called ‘Primitivo.’ It’s the perfect description of Zinfandel. Now Larry Turley isn’t Italian, but his wines embrace the primitive side of this incredibly robust and juicy grape. Hell, even when he isn’t working with Zinfandel, his style leans towards the primal and massive. The Petite Sirahs are not petite – they are Falstaffian. That Ueberroth Vineyard is 16.2% alcohol and is sleek, powerful and dark as a sex panther—yet the alcohol is totally in balance with the fruit and acid. (And yes, that is an Anchorman reference.)

While one can dine at Stone Park, we ourselves like to eat. Lamb chops, braised short ribs with liberal servings of roasted vegetables – it’s just how we roll. When we tuck in to big, boldly flavored meals, it makes us happy to have a big, boldly flavored wine at hand. Hence our love of Larry Turley and his magically anti-subtle wines.

STEAK WINES

Were you looking at the Beef Tenderloin? Of course you were. It is delicious, after all – rich and tangy and peppery and juicy. So now you need a wine to go with it – perhaps something in the rich, tangy, peppery, juicy vein? There are plenty of wines on the list that are good with steak (Champagne – no joke) – but these are the ones that are great.

Oh, and these wines are great with lots of things other than steak, too. Burgers, Pork Chops, or just on their own...
